St. Joseph's College,

Collegeville, Ind.

(Rensselaer)

1891-1917

A WORD OR TWO.

For the past two years the College has made a serious effort to systematize the available records of former students. The information obtained from past class records, account books, old mailing lists, and from a canvass of the former students themselves during the summer and fall of 1917, has been carded for permanent reference. The work has now progressed to a point which, we believe, justifies publication of the results as given in the following pages. If the information given is as interesting to the reader as it has been to the collectors of it, the College will feel amply repaid for the work and expense.

This is the first list to be so prepared and published. The nature of the preparatory work required many transcriptions of the various items, and the items themselves came from many sources, some of which were not original. It is to be expected, therefore, that inaccuracies, mistakes, and blunders will be found. We will be grateful to anyone who will send in a correction of such errors upon the enclosed card.

There are three lists. The first is a list of all students who were at the College one full year or over and were honorably dismissed. It contains the names of only a few of the former religious students, as most of their addresses have been lost. The second list contains the names of the deceased. The third is a list of those whose proper addresses have been lost. Any information concerning the persons listed in it will be appreciated.

It may be added here that many former students who do not belong to the Alumni Association are eligible to it. The present register is not a list of the members of the Association.

In September 1916, a short history of the College, "The Retrospect", written by Rev. William D. Sullivan, '97, of Wabash, Ind., was published by the Alumni Association.

There are still about fifty copies of this history available, and while they last, a copy will be sent to the address of any former student upon request.

Do not forget the St. Joe boys in the service of their country. Some of them, you will notice from the following pages, are now serving in France.

Please keep the College informed of changes in address especially when you are requested to do so. You are interested in the activities of your former fellow students and they are interested in you.
